DRAGON, Extreme Hi-Heat Styles

Let the Dragon fight extreme heat for you! With a variety of styles, some designed to withstand temperatures as high as 800°F, these gloves and mitts will give you the confidence to get the job done with the needed dexterity to perform tasks safely. We've combined several high-performance materials in various combinations to satisfy any number of applications in which one is intermittently handling hot steel, glass or other metals.

Kevlar® is the number one material of choice for this type of application. It will not melt on contact with open flame or hot materials. Available in knit, terry and woven form, it forms the basis of our heat-resistant product line. From there, our range of styles include combinations of some of the following: wool liners for insulation, leather for extra durability, outer steel mesh layers for the most extreme applications, and cotton. Overall though, it is the seamless-knit construction that provides unparalleled dexterity and comfort for workers in some of the most challenging applications.
